ORIGINAL LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

(From Part 1, March 1946)

Hon. ELBERT D. THOMAS,
Chairman, Senate Military Affairs Committee,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR CHAIRMAN: I have the privilege of transmitting herewith the first part of the Nazi Party membership records listing Nazi Party members outside of Germany, which were made a part of your subcommittee's record on the elimination of German resources for war by Maj. Gen. John H. Hilldring, Director of the Civil Affairs Division of the War Department, at the hearing on March 6, 1946.

The material which I am transmitting herewith is but a fraction of the total list which has been made a part of the record, and which will be transmitted to you as it is transcribed from the microfilm form in which it was brought from Germany. The microfilm rolls contain actual photographs made by the War Department of the Nazi Party card files which were discovered by our Army in the United States zone of Germany.

I am appending below an excerpt from the subcommittee hearing of March 6 in which General Hilldring discussed these records:

General HILLDRING: There is one other matter which you have asked me to take up today. As you know, the Army discovered in the United States zone in Germany the membership records of the Nazi Party, and has taken them to Berlin for use by the four occupying powers in the administration of military government. Since the 20 tons of records were in a chaotic state when they were discovered, the job of putting them in order has taken a little time. As these records are reorganized, Army personnel is microfilming membership cards and related documents covering party memberships outside of Germany and Austria for transmittal to this country. The microfilms are being forwarded to the War Department as they are made and will continue to arrive until sometime in May, when we expect to have the last one filed.

At our request, Senator, the War Department has already furnished the subcommittee with the first two rolls of films. Today, I am delivering rolls 3, 4, and 5. At the request of the subcommittee, we are transmitting that portion of the material in these first five rolls which relates to the United States and Argentina. This work will be completed and forwarded to the committee in a few days. It takes a little time to transcribe this German script into legible English.

I wish to emphasize, however, that the original records were made by Germans and not by the Army; in other words, these are German records and not United States Army records, and that the War Department cannot vouch for their accuracy. We just report to you where we got them and what they are.

The CHAIRMAN. In other words, it is the home lodge reports; they had so many members in a certain place?

General HILLDRING. That's right. The home lodge says they are the members, and that is what these records are, sir. Also, since the job of going through the entire file in Berlin has not yet been completed, the microfilms received here thus far may not cover any country completely.

Finally, we have found it very difficult to read the microfilms with the German script, in which many of the entries of the party membership cards are made, and cannot be sure that our transcription of this material is accurate in all cases. We are doing our level best to make it accurate.

The CHAIRMAN. General, it is my belief that the people of the United States should be advised as to what Germany's records show. I believe it is educational for the American public and is a warning of what might take place in the future. For that reason, I am going to order that all these transcribed records be put in the subcommittee record as part of your testimony if you will permit.

General HILLDRING. I have no objection, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

Sincerely yours,

HARLEY M. KILGORE,
Subcommittee Chairman.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
CIVIL AFFAIRS DIVISION,
Washington 25, D. C., May 21, 1946.

HON. HARLEY M. KILGORE,
United States Senate.

DEAR SENATOR KILGORE: In accordance with your request, there follows a brief summary of information concerning Nazi Party membership records furnished by Maj. William D. Browne in a special interview, May 3, 1946. I would appreciate it being understood that this information is based upon the personal experience and evaluation of Major Browne, and is not an official War Department release. In this connection, I am enclosing a copy of a cable which has been dispatched to the theater for the specific purpose of correlating Major Browne's views with the official views of the theater. You will be advised of the theater reply.¹

It now is estimated that U. S. Army Military Government holds the full record of every person who joined the Nazi Party and of everyone who was refused or "blacklisted" by the party. The document center in Berlin has investigation reports, "Fragebogen," and applications of members and pretensional members, the correspondence files of Reichsschatzmeister Schwarz, secret minutes of meetings between Hindenburg, Hitler, Neurath, Ribbentrop, and others at the time Hitler came into power, the financial records of NSDAP, correspondence files of Ritter von Epp (Reichsstatthalter), and files classified "Geheime Reichssache" ("top secret") showing minutes of meetings and subjects discussed by the French Armistice Commission, in Wiesbaden at the time of the French surrender in 1940. These cards, files, correspondence and related documents cover NSDAP activities all over the world.

These records fell into the hands of the United States Army through the desire of a German paper-mill operator to gain favor with the Americans. From that point, the story is principally one of intelligent investigation on the part of American Military Government personnel of Detachment E-205, located in Munich.

In September 1945 curiosity was aroused by the finding of four gunny sacks filled with cards in the building where his detachment was housed in Munich. These sacks evidently had been examined cursorily by an American unit, but abandoned as uninteresting or unimportant. This was understandable because there were no marks whatsoever on the cards to indicate that they were Nazi Party records. It was decided to trace the origin of the cards.

The cards had been brought to the building in Munich in United States Army trucks from a nearby paper mill whose owner had advised the United States Army that these cards were in his plant. A few Germans who had worked with the files and knew their value were then located. These workers who believed that the records long since had been destroyed (that's why they were in the paper mill—to be made into pulp), identified the records. A thorough check of huge piles of paper at the mill disclosed cards, records, and papers buried under tons of waste and debris. Two photographs are enclosed showing the chaotic condition in which these records were found.

Immediate steps were taken to sift through this mass of waste to collect and preserve the NSDAP cards, records, and papers. Security measures were taken to prevent further possible loss of these related documents. A search of other paper mills in the area disclosed the remainder of the records.

During the period of September 19, 1945, to January 21, 1946, the Special Branch of Military Government Detachment E-205 located approximately 55 tons of NSDAP documents. Under direction of Lt. Col. J. W. Hensel, Glendale, Calif., the detachment commander, these records were transferred to the 6889 Berlin Documents Center. Now these records are being sorted and cataloged under the direction of Lt. Col. Hans W. Helm and extraordinary progress is being made. Carefully screened Germans, under close supervision of Americans, are handling the sorting job.

When finally cataloged and sorted, these files will prove of extreme value in carrying out one of the key aims of the Potsdam Declaration—destruction of the National Socialist Party and its affiliated and supervised organizations.

I am enclosing Weekly Information Bulletin No. 37, published by United States Military Government in Germany. It carries an excellent article on the Nazi Party which greatly discredits the "I was forced to join" chorus. I thought you might be interested in it.

Sincerely,

O. P. ECHOLS,
Major General, United States Army,
Director, Civil Affairs Division.

From Military Government Weekly Information Bulletin No. 37, April 15, 1946]

ARE THERE "GOOD" NAZIS?

It was hard to enter and harder to remain in the Nazi Party.

Analysis of membership regulations discredit the "I was forced to join" chorus. Volitional principle stressed by all NSDAP leaders and directives.

Can you tell a Nazi sheep from a Nazi goat? Is it true that many a well-meaning German was forced into the NSDAP membership? Was many another duped, led in while innocent of the party's purposes and history? Can we make any safe distinction between one date of party membership and another to determine the dividing line between "good" Nazis and "bad" Nazis?

In the light of a recently completed analysis of NSDAP membership history and policy, Military Government personnel would do well to scan with an extremely skeptical eye the political records of all NSDAP members and member-aspirants. This analysis, gleaned from exhaustive study of party records and from personal interviews with the leading executives of the Reichsschatzmeisterei (NSDAP treasury, the office in charge of membership affairs), furnishes little support for the deprecations of the "I was forced" or "I didn't know" variety of membership disclaimer. It indicates that there are few if any loopholes of intent, ignorance, or timing through which a member or applicant for membership should be able to escape the consequences of his ideological preference.

HISTORY OF PARTY MEMBERSHIP

There are five significant dates in the membership history of the NSDAP:

- February 27, 1925: Founding of the "new" NSDAP;
- May 1, 1933: Beginning of closed period for membership (Mitgliedersperre);
- May 1, 1937: Loosening of closed period (Lockerung der Mitgliedersperre);
- May 1, 1939: End of closed period;
- February 2, 1942: Beginning of closed period.

The original Nazi Party was dissolved after Hitler's arrest on November 9, 1923, and re-created on February 27, 1925. Membership in the old NSDAP could not be carried over into the new, and former members who joined the new group could not retain their old numbers (Hitler, who was member No. 7 in the original group, became member No. 1 in 1925).

On July 15, 1932, after a closed period, the party membership gates were swung open and accepted practically anybody who wished to join. This membership drive lasted for less than a year (May 1, 1933).

The party was not open 6 years later, for general membership again until 1939; although a temporary exception was made in the early months of 1935 for pre-1934 applicants from Gau Bayrische Ostmark, in memory of Nazi Hans Schemm. Always excepted from the closed periods were members of the HJ who were 18 years old, members of the NSBO, and applicants with active service in the SA or SS. The exceptions were reduced on January 2, 1936 to members of HJ or BDM and members of the Stahlhelm.

EXCEPTIONS TO THE RULE

Individual departures from the Mitgliedersperre could be made only by Hitler himself or by Hess. The only large-scale exception was authorized May 1, 1937 when the gates were opened a crack to let in Nazis who had proved themselves active and devoted in the interim. This action was known as the "Lockerung der Mitgliedersperre," or loosening of the closed, and was anticipated in 1935 by publication of a list of the following groups, who would be eligible to apply as soon as the Lockerung took place.

(a) German citizens who had since November 1, 1936 been active in office as Zellenleiter, Blockleiter, Blockhelfer or treasurer in Ortsgruppen and Stuetzpunkten for the NSDAP.

(b) German citizens who had been members since October 1, 1934, without interruption, of the SA, SS or NSKK (exception to 1934 qualification: transfers into these formations from HJ or Stahlhelm).

(c) Members of the HJ or BDM from May 1, 1933 who had held the minimum rank equivalent of second lieutenant.

(d) Women who had been members of the NS Frauenschaft prior to October 1, 1934.

(e) Pre-November 1934 leaders of NSDOP (party-controlled league of university readers and teachers or NSDSTB (Party affiliate composed of university students).

(f) Pre-November 1934 officers of affiliated organizations.

(g) Stammpersonal of the RAD (National Labor Service) who had been RAD members since October 1, 1934 unless transferred into RAD from SA, SS, NSKK, or HJ.

(h) Army veterans with 6 years of service who had been honorably discharged after April 30, 1933.

(i) German citizens needed by an office of the NSDAP for special services within the party or whose membership was of special political value, as well as certain Opferring members of proved reliability (as suggested only by the Gauleiters).

The order specified that the purpose of its limitations was to confine acceptance of new membership to cases of proved merit. Applicants whose qualifications did not fully correspond to the exact conditions, yet who could prove their political reliability and zeal, were also given a chance to come into the fold.

A PARTY WAITING LIST

To make sure that only the choice Nazis could join during the Lockerung, Hess introduced the institution of Parteianwaerter, whereby the aspirant paid dues, wore the party badge and went through the motions of membership for sometimes as long as a year under NSDAP scrutiny before his acceptance or rejection became final. During the years of the Mitgliedersperre many would-be members banded together in groups called Opferringe to devote themselves to proving their loyalty to nazism. Their chief contribution to the party seems to have been cash, and their members were never recognized in the sense the Anwaerter were, probational members of the party. In 1938 an Opferring was established in Sudetenland and in 1940 one in Alsace. In some districts Nazi enthusiasts who were prevented from joining the party because of former political or lodge memberships or for other reasons, formed groups called NS-Opfergemeinschaften to prove their readiness to cooperate with the Hitler regime. These groups, however, never received official recognition from the party.

It was emphasized by the party treasury officials that Lockerung was never intended or employed as a free-for-all suspension of the closed period, but was rather, both as proposed and as carried out, a plan for admitting people who had been active in the Nazi movement since memberships were closed in 1933. They maintain that even though the number of people who joined the party during the Lockerung exceeded the number who joined in 1939 when the gates were reopened, these people represented a very careful selection; since in every single case of admission during the Lockerung, political activity had to be proved.

The Mitgliedersperre was suspended as of May 1, 1939. Further temporary closures were called from time to time for administrative purposes, but the next indefinite closed period did not occur until February 2, 1942. Exceptions to these closings were members of the HJ and BMD, honorably discharged members of the Wehrmacht who had distinguished themselves in service, resettlers (especially from Southern Tyrol and the Sudetenland), and (after July 20, 1944) soldiers still in service who had proved themselves good National Socialists. Other exceptions had to be approved individually by the party chancellery (Martin Bormann).

On July 14, 1942, Hitler decreed that nobody over 35 should henceforth be accepted for membership. This decree was not intended to be published until after the end of the war, although it was strictly followed until the end of 1943. The German public in general had no knowledge of the decree; many applicants who were refused at that time for being overage claim today that they were rejected for political reasons.

MEMBERSHIP SELECT AND VOLUNTARY

The primary fact is established that the NSDAP was not at any time intended to encompass the entire German population. Hitler's own conception of the ideal proportion was a mere 10 percent of the total population. It was a qualitative not a quantitative, group, designed to become a nucleus of the most reliable and trustworthy German elements (in the Nazi sense), who would blindly support the Hitler government at any time and under any circumstances.

That this aim necessarily connoted voluntary membership is made officially clear in the Organisationsbuch der NSDAP:

"According to a statement of the Fuehrer only the best National Socialists shall be admitted into the NSDAP * * * The call for a German into the party denotes to him a special honor and distinction, because herewith he becomes enrolled into the following of the Fuehrer. The principle of voluntary entrance into the party must never be abandoned or tampered with in any way. This principle of voluntary entrance, which is one of the most valuable and essential features of the movement, must rather be firmly upheld. As natural as it is that the party authorities should wish to enroll as many as possible of those fellow Germans who appear useful to them, force or pressure to make them join the party must never be employed in any form, not even in the threat of a disadvantage for those fellow Germans who do not wish to be admitted into the party."

The principle of volition was stressed repeatedly in succeeding orders and decrees issued by the Reichsleitung.

RIGID ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

A further corollary to the aim that NSDAP membership must be select and freely willed is the fact that at no time did automatic or corporative memberships exist. Every membership had to be individually applied for and the application personally signed by the candidate.

Prerequisites for application, as stated in the NSDAP directions for the guidance of the national treasurer, specified that a member-aspirant must be 21 years of age and a citizen of the Reich, and male applicants under 25 must show proof of having honorably completed their military service. Membership was automatically denied when the applicant—

- (a) Had a marriage partner of "Jewish or colored racial mixture."
- (b) Had children surviving from such a marriage, even though the marriage had been dissolved by death or divorce.
- (c) Was a member of the Freemasons, Oddfellows, Druids, or any similar fraternal or secret society.
- (d) Had been convicted of defamatory actions; exceptions were made in cases of "special merit."
- (e) Had been dishonorably discharged from the armed forces.
- (f) Suffered from hereditary illness as defined by the law of July 14, 1933.
- (g) Had voluntarily resigned from the party (unless his application for readmission had the personal approval of the Gauleiter).
- (h) Was a professor, instructor, or student of theology or a member of certain religious sects.

Even more stringent requirements were decreed by law 2/42 which put upon subdistrict and local officials (Kreisleiter and Ortsgruppenleiter) the responsibility of deciding whether the individual applicant was by conviction a true National Socialist. Clergymen were eliminated by this law, which stressed the necessity of an "impartial" viewpoint toward the church on the part of NSDAP members. It also demanded mental and physical fitness and racial purity.

APPLICANTS WERE INVESTIGATED

Although it was the duty of the Kreisleiter and especially the Ortsgruppenleiter to investigate the qualifications of applicants, it appears that in 1933 such investigations were often of a rather superficial nature, and were likely to be more concerned with the candidate's party donations and subscriptions to party papers than with the history of his politics. This was not the case after 1936 when the applicant had to submit, in addition to the previously required application and photograph, detailed Fragebogen on his personal and political background. An organization was set up for thorough investigation and evaluation by the Ortsgruppenleiter of these Fragebogen; and special arrangements were made for the investigation of Wehrmacht and RAD (Reichsarbeitsdienst or Compulsory National Labor Service) personnel within their own organizations, since they were out of reach of the party officials.

In order to avoid a break in discipline during the war, it was forbidden to interrogate subordinate police officers and men about their superiors' politics. However, a public official, who was also Amtstraeger of the party, could speak freely if asked by a party office about the political conditions of another official, so long as such breach did not jeopardize the interests of the State.

POLITICAL EXAMINATION

The treasury insisted on more and more thorough investigations and set up special forms known as "Politische Beurteilung" for determining the exact political backgrounds of applicants. Hitler repeatedly forbade that these evaluations be made superficially or that references be obliging with letters of recommendation. The Beurteilung, which could be made out only by party officials from the rank of Kreisleiter up, on the basis of information obtained from the respective competent party officials, were in turn subject to careful examination and checking.

The Beurteilung could also be requested in certain cases other than those involving applications for a party membership. The strictest measures had to be applied if political evaluations of persons of Jewish descent were requested. Only in very exceptional cases were these persons allowed to join the Wehrmacht, and each of these cases was examined by the Fuehrer personally.

Before a candidate could be accepted for party membership, the most detailed kind of political evaluation was required, including investigation at the applicant's past places of residence. Upon application the candidate had to be "suggested" by the Ortsgruppenleiter to the Kreisleiter, who in turn "suggested" his name to the Gauleiter, who transmitted the suggestion to the Reichsleitung. The correspondence of the Reichsleitung proves that this highest party office was adhering strictly to the various laws regulating membership.

The Berlin Document Center has evidence indicating that roughly one-third of those who applied for membership were not accepted. Any application could be turned down by the Kreisleiter without given reasons. A vast majority of letters which came down from the Reichsleitung dealt with refusal of membership applications, on grounds which ranged from one applicant's lack of sufficient party enthusiasm to another's marriage to a Polish woman.

SPECIAL CASE—THE YOUTH GROUPS

There were numerous modifications in the admission requirements for members of the HJ (Hitlerjugend or Hitler Youth) and BDM (Bund Deutscher Maedel, female counterpart of HJ). Membership ranks of the party were at no time closed to them, and the eligible age for admission was lowered to 18 years (after completion of 4 years' active service in the respective youth group). There were no admission fees and no Fragebogen required of candidates from the HJ and the BDM; but applications did have to be submitted, and a special point was made of the fact that such application had to be voluntary. The "pressure" here of course was moral; the entire education of these young people had been with party membership as the shining goal. Since only 30 percent of the HJ and 5 percent of the BDM graduates in a given year could be admitted, it was considered a great distinction to be accepted as a candidate, and it very likely never occurred to a young person to refuse the honor.

The relationship of members of the Wehrmacht to the party also contains exceptions to the usual membership pattern. The old principle of the German Army excludes every soldier from political activities of any kind, and this principle was adhered to with minor exceptions up to 1943. A preinduction member of the party was allowed to retain inactive membership while in the armed forces and to apply for active status upon receiving his honorable discharge.

SPECIAL CASE—THE ARMY

The infiltration of political influences into the Wehrmacht began with a few relatively unimportant departures from the "no politics" line, such as the decree of 1936, under which applications for party membership were accepted from Wehrmacht officers and certain soldiers who had to undergo a training period of not longer than 8 weeks. The decree of 1941 permitted members of the Wehrmacht to make voluntary contributions to the NSDAP; and in 1942 applications were accepted from certain former members of the HJ while still in active service. In November 1943 the Chief of the OKW (Oberkommando der Wehrmacht, or supreme command of the armed forces) announced that in individual cases officers from the rank of battalion commander would be permitted to be active on their own time in the NSDAP, its formations and affiliates. During the last months of 1943 and the early part of 1944 the party was given paramount influence within the Wehrmacht. On January 7, 1944, Hitler ordered that a Fuehrungsstab (political administration) be created in the OKW and political commissars (NS Fuehrungs-Offiziere) be appointed. The old principle of the unpolitical soldier went by the boards and former party activists were pressed to continue their political activities within the army.

The chief of the NS-Fuehrungsstab of the OKW was charged with providing political activity for the troops, unifying the political indoctrination of the high commands and leading Wehrmacht officers, acting as adviser on replacements of important officers, and setting up political requirements for officers assigned to training and educational duties.

To give further assurance of cooperation between the party and NS Fuehrungsstab-OKW, Keitel created an Arbeitsstab (working staff) made up of the chiefs of the offices of propaganda, press, racial purity, government organization, labor, and the trustees for the supervision of the spiritual-political education of the NSDAP. On a lower level, the unit commander was made responsible for political leadership in the individual unit, his political advisor being the NS Fuehrungs-offizier, whose functions corresponded to those of G-3 (commander's tactical advisor). To the position of Fuehrungsoffizier, which did not exist below division level, were appointed former Politische Leiter or active officers with the required political background.

The final dissolution of the old barriers between politics and Army came in July 1944, when the gates of the party were opened to soldiers.

FORMATIONS AND AFFILIATES

For a complete understanding of the significance of party membership it is also necessary to trace the labyrinthine ways of the so-called formations (Gliederungen) in their relationship to the NSDAP:

(a) The SA lost its elite position in 1934 when its membership requirements became less rigorous. Thereafter a member of the SA was considered as a Nazi inferior to a regular member of the NSDAP. After 1937 the party tried to exert some pressure on SA men to make them join the party. SA rank determined position in the party, insofar as NSDAP officers selected from SA had to be, with a few individual exceptions, members of the SA reserve (aged 35 and up), who served only 1 week each month in the SA and devoted the rest of their energy to political activity. Active SA members who attended party offices remained in the regular SA.

(b) The SS and HJ were bound by the same regulations as the SA. The SS had always held an elite position, but in 1937 the party put pressure on the SS members to have them become regular members of the NSDAP.

(c) The NSKK (NS-Kraftfahr Korps or motor corps), originally the motorized division of the SA, became a separate formation. Within the party it was treated exactly like the SA, although it came to be considered a more elite and politically acceptable group.

(d) The NS Frauenschaft (women's organization) held a position corresponding to the SA. After 1937 the party wanted every member of the Frauenschaft to join the NSDAP.

(e) NS-Studentenbund and Dozentenbund had a sort of rivalry within the party. NSDAP officials used to call the Dozentenbund "a party formation by mistake" because it finally succeeded in achieving formation status in order not to be inferior to the Studentenbund.

(f) The Stahlhelm was transferred into the SA in 1934, but any individual member could refuse to be so transferred, and likewise any member of the SA could leave that group without fear of consequences. In 1936 a special exception was made from the Mitgliedersperre to let Stahlhelm members join the party, but these applicants were very carefully and individually evaluated.

(g) Affiliated organizations included many trade and professional groups and membership in any one of these was by no means equal or even similar to party membership.

EXPULSION FROM THE PARTY

A thought must also be given to the reasons for which a member could be expelled from the NSDAP, lest it be assumed that anyone who was dismissed automatically became a non-Nazi, or that antinazi-ism was the common reason for expulsion. A statute of January 1, 1934, decreed that members will be separated—

(a) Who commit dishonorable deeds or who committed deeds which became known after admittance.

(b) Who act against the objectives of the NSDAP.

(c) Who through antimoral conduct in the party and in the community give offense and thereby harm the party.

(d) Who within the Ortsgruppe, the Kreis or the Gau have repeatedly given cause for quarrels and disputes.

(e) Who in spite of summons are 3 months behind in their dues without an excuse.

(f) Due to lack of interest.

The Reichsleitung kept an individual file for every party member. If anything of a derogatory nature was reported to the Reichsleitung by any of the party officers, the SD or the Gestapo, a warning card was attached to the file. When the file of an applicant showed a warning card, the case was handed over to the Schiedsamt which then decided finally about the acceptance of the applicant.

"I WAS FORCED TO JOIN THE PARTY"

The doctrine of voluntary membership seems to have been seriously followed throughout the history of the party until the outbreak of the war in 1939. Exceptions undoubtedly occurred in the lower levels to the extent that petty officials of the NSDAP, minor civil service executives and other more or less influential people did exert some pressure on their subordinates to join up, by way of proving their own political zeal. There is no evidence, however, that such pressure ever took a punitive form; rather, it was on a reward basis, with intimations of raises of promotions being made to prospective members.

In judging whether the determining factor in an individual's NSDAP membership was actually coercion or only opportunism, the investigator should also bear in mind that, even though a candidate had been persuaded to apply for membership, he still had to pass muster on his political reliability through a series of party officials who could not be expected to feel the same tender concern for his making the grade as the particular petty official who had recommended the move. In other words, regardless of the original motivating factor, it was still up to the candidate to show initiative and political enthusiasm in order to demonstrate his eligibility for membership.

OPPORTUNISTIC APPLICANTS

There is no question but that it was advantageous for a civil servant or teacher to join the party. Important civil service positions in Prussia were to be filled by prime Nazis only; and promotions were as a general rule more easily available for party members. Yet as soon as the first run in 1933 was over, an applicant had to furnish proof of his Nazi background and convictions, and subject himself to thorough investigation in order to join the party. It was only in 1939 that a statute was passed requiring membership in the party or one of its formations for applicants for a State appointment. Civil servants who were employed before this order was passed, however, were never officially required to become party members. On the contrary, the Reichsschatzmeister appears to have been dismayed when in 1937 an overwhelming number of the applications for membership came from civil servants and teachers.

Another group anxious to jump on the band wagon following Hitler's rise to power in 1933 was made up of public officials. This rush was largely motivated by opportunism on the part of the officials, who hoped to get promotions if they belonged to the party—and it seems in many instances that their hopes were fulfilled. In order to restore the professional balance within the party, jeopardized by the onslaught of eager officialdom, the Reichsschatzmeister repeatedly stressed the basic principle that membership had to be voluntary.

Anordnung 20/37 (Rudolph Hess) specifically stated that no employee in private enterprise who was expelled from the party was to be dismissed from his position. If expulsion, the heaviest punishment the party could inflict upon an individual, was not sufficient grounds for firing a man from his job, it is unlikely that he would, under the general rule, have been dismissed for refusing to join the party. The fact that a number of leading industrialists and businessmen successfully withstood the "pressure" to join the party is further evidence that individuals of character and conviction could not be forced to join.

Hon. HARLEY M. KILGORE,
United States Senate.

DEAR SENATOR KILGORE: By letter of May 21, 1946, I transmitted to you information concerning the Nazi Party membership records obtained from Maj. William D. Browne. The Office of Military Government for Germany (United States) has been furnished a copy of Major Browne's statement and has replied as follows:

"The information given is substantially correct with the following modifications:

1. Complete sets of records on every Nazi Party member as well as the refused and black-listed individuals are not available. It is estimated that partial information on most such persons will ultimately be available.

2. Correspondence files and financial records of the NSDAP are not complete.

3. Files pertaining to the French Armistice Commission were turned over to the French authorities by United States Third Army."

Sincerely yours,

O. P. ECHOLS,
Major General, United States Army,
Director, Civil Affairs Division.
